Ozymandias

- 1 I met a traveller from an antique land
Who said: Two vast and trunkless legs of stone Stand in the desert. Near them on the sand, Half sunk, a shattered visage lies, whose frown 5 And wrinkled lip, and sneer of cold command Tell that its sculptor well those passions read
Which yet survive, stamped on these lifeless things,
The hand that mocked them and the heart that fed;
And on the pedestal these words appear:
10 'My name is Ozymandias, king of kings:
Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair!'
Nothing beside remains. Round the decay
Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare,
The lone and level sands stretch far away.

London

- 1 I wander through each chartered street,
Near where the chartered Thames does flow,
And mark in every face I meet Marks of weakness, marks of woe.
- 5 In every cry of every man,
In every infant's cry of fear,
In every voice, in every ban,
The mind-forged manacles I hear:
- How the chimney-sweeper's cry 10 Every black'ning church appalls,
And the hapless soldier's sigh Runs in blood down palace walls.
- But most through midnight streets I hear How the youthful harlot's curse 15 Blasts the new-born infant's tear,
And blights with plagues the marriage hearse.

Extract from, The Prelude

- 1 One summer evening (led by her) I found A little boat tied to a willow tree
Within a rocky cove, its usual home.
Straight I unloosed her chain, and stepping in
- 5 Pushed from the shore. It was an act of stealth
And troubled pleasure, nor without the voice Of mountain-echoes did my boat move on;
Leaving behind her still, on either side,
Small circles glittering idly in the moon,
- 10 Until they melted all into one track
Of sparkling light. But now, like one who rows, Proud of his skill, to reach a chosen point
With an unswerving line, I fixed my view Upon the summit of a craggy ridge,
- 15 The horizon's utmost boundary; far above
Was nothing but the stars and the grey sky.
She was an elfin pinnace; lustily
I dipped my oars into the silent lake,
And, as I rose upon the stroke, my boat
- 20 Went heaving through the water like a swan;
When, from behind that craggy steep till then The horizon's bound, a huge peak, black and huge,
As if with voluntary power instinct, Upreared its head. I struck and struck again,
- 25 And growing still in stature the grim shape Towered up between me and the stars, and still,
For so it seemed, with purpose of its own
And measured motion like a living thing, Strode after me. With trembling oars I turned,
- 30 And through the silent water stole my way

Back to the covert of the willow tree;
There in her mooring-place I left my bark, –
And through the meadows homeward went, in grave
And serious mood; but after I had seen 35 That spectacle, for many days, my brain Worked with a dim and undetermined sense Of unknown modes of being; o'er my thoughts
There hung a darkness, call it solitude Or blank desertion. No familiar shapes 40 Remained, no pleasant images of trees,
Of sea or sky, no colours of green fields;
But huge and mighty forms, that do not live Like living men, moved slowly through the mind
By day, and were a trouble to my dreams.

My Last Duchess

Ferrara

- 1 That's my last Duchess painted on the wall, Looking as if she were alive. I call That piece a wonder, now: Frà Pandolf's hands Worked busily a day, and there she stands.
- 5 Will't please you sit and look at her? I said
'Frà Pandolf' by design, for never read Strangers like you that pictured countenance,
The depth and passion of its earnest glance, But to myself they turned (since none puts by
- 10 The curtain I have drawn for you, but I)
And seemed as they would ask me, if they durst, How such a glance came there; so, not the first
Are you to turn and ask thus. Sir, 'twas not Her husband's presence only, called that spot
- 15 Of joy into the Duchess' cheek: perhaps Frà Pandolf chanced to say 'Her mantle laps Over my lady's wrist too much,' or 'Paint Must never hope to reproduce the faint Half-flush that dies along her throat': such stuff
- 20 Was courtesy, she thought, and cause enough For calling up that spot of joy. She had A heart – how shall I say? – too soon made glad,
Too easily impressed; she liked whate'er
She looked on, and her looks went everywhere.
- 25 Sir, 'twas all one! My favour at her breast,
The dropping of the daylight in the West,
The bough of cherries some officious fool Broke in the orchard for her, the white mule

- She rode with round the terrace – all and each 30 Would draw from her alike the approving speech, Or blush, at least. She thanked men, – good! but thanked Somehow – I know not how – as if she ranked My gift of a nine-hundred-years-old name With anybody's gift. Who'd stoop to blame 35 This sort of trifling? Even had you skill In speech – (which I have not) – to make your will Quite clear to such an one, and say, 'Just this Or that in you disgusts me; here you miss,
Or there exceed the mark' – and if she let 40 Herself be lessoned so, nor plainly set Her wits to yours, forsooth, and made excuse, – E'en then would be some stooping; and I choose Never to stoop. Oh sir, she smiled, no doubt, Whene'er I passed her; but who passed without 45 Much the same smile? This grew; I gave commands; Then all smiles stopped together. There she stands As if alive. Will't please you rise? We'll meet The company below, then. I repeat,
The Count your master's known munificence 50 Is ample warrant that no just pretence
Of mine for dowry will be disallowed;
Though his fair daughter's self, as I avowed At starting, is my object. Nay, we'll go Together down, sir. Notice Neptune, though, 55 Taming a sea-horse, thought a rarity,
Which Claus of Innsbruck cast in bronze for me!

The Charge of the Light Brigade

1.

- 1 Half a league, half a league,
Half a league onward,
All in the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.
- 5 'Forward, the Light Brigade!
Charge for the guns!' he said:
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

- 'Forward, the Light Brigade!'
10 Was there a man dismay'd?
Not tho' the soldier knew
Some one had blunder'd:
Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why, 15 Theirs but to do and die:
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

3.

- Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
20 Cannon in front of them
Volley'd and thunder'd;
Storm'd at with shot and shell,
Boldly they rode and well,
Into the jaws of Death,
25 Into the mouth of Hell
Rode the six hundred.

- Flash'd all their sabres bare,
Flash'd as they turn'd in air
Sabring the gunners there, 30 Charging an army, while
All the world wonder'd:
Plunged in the battery-smoke
Right thro' the line they broke;
Cossack and Russian 35 Reel'd from the sabre-stroke
Shatter'd and sunder'd.
Then they rode back, but not
Not the six hundred.

5.

- Cannon to right of them,
40 Cannon to left of them,
Cannon behind them
Volley'd and thunder'd;
Storm'd at with shot and shell,
While horse and hero fell,
45 They that had fought so well Came thro' the jaws of Death
Back from the mouth of Hell,
All that was left of them,
Left of six hundred.

6.

- 50 When can their glory fade?
O the wild charge they made!
All the world wonder'd.
Honour the charge they made!
Honour the Light Brigade, 55 Noble six hundred!

Exposure

1 Our brains ache, in the merciless iced east winds that knive us ...

Wearied we keep awake because the night is silent ...
Low, drooping flares confuse our memory of the salient ...

5 Worried by silence, sentries whisper, curious, nervous,
But nothing happens.

Watching, we hear the mad gusts tugging on the wire,
Like twitching agonies of men among its brambles.
Northward, incessantly, the flickering gunnery rumbles,

10 Far off, like a dull rumour of some other war.
What are we doing here?

The poignant misery of dawn begins to grow ...
We only know war lasts, rain soaks, and clouds sag stormy.
Dawn massing in the east her melancholy army

15 Attacks once more in ranks on shivering ranks of grey,
But nothing happens.

Sudden successive flights of bullets streak the silence.
Less deadly than the air that shudders black with snow,
With sidelong flowing flakes that flock, pause, and renew,

20 We watch them wandering up and down the wind's nonchalance,
But nothing happens.

Pale flakes with fingering stealth come feeling for our faces –
We cringe in holes, back on forgotten dreams, and stare,

25 snow-dazed,
Deep into grassier ditches. So we drowse, sun-dozed, Littered with blossoms trickling where the blackbird fusses.
– Is it that we are dying?

Slowly our ghosts drag home: glimpsing the sunk fires, glozed 30 With crusted dark-red jewels; crickets jingle there;
For hours the innocent mice rejoice: the house is theirs;
Shutters and doors, all closed: on us the doors are closed, -
We turn back to our dying.

Since we believe not otherwise can kind fires burn;
35 Nor ever suns smile true on child, or field, or fruit.
For God's invincible spring our love is made afraid;
Therefore, not loath, we lie out here; therefore were born,
For love of God seems dying.

Tonight, this frost will fasten on this mud and us, 40 Shrivelling many hands, puckering foreheads crisp.
The burying-party, picks and shovels in shaking grasp,
Pause over half-known faces. All their eyes are ice,
But nothing happens.

Storm on the Island

- 1 We are prepared: we build our houses squat, Sink walls in rock and roof them with good slate.
This wizened earth has never troubled us
With hay, so, as you see, there are no stacks
- 5 Or stooks that can be lost. Nor are there trees Which might prove company when it blows full Blast: you know what I mean – leaves and branches
Can raise a tragic chorus in a gale
So that you can listen to the thing you fear
- 10 Forgetting that it pummels your house too.
But there are no trees, no natural shelter.
You might think that the sea is company,
Exploding comfortably down on the cliffs
But no: when it begins, the flung spray hits
- 15 The very windows, spits like a tame cat Turned savage. We just sit tight while wind dives And strafes invisibly. Space is a salvo.
We are bombarded by the empty air.
Strange, it is a huge nothing that we fear.

Bayonet Charge

- 1 Suddenly he awoke and was running – raw
In raw-seamed hot khaki, his sweat heavy, Stumbling across a field of clods towards a green hedge That dazzled with rifle fire, hearing
- 5 Bullets smacking the belly out of the air –
He lugged a rifle numb as a smashed arm;
The patriotic tear that had brimmed in his eye Sweating like molten iron from the centre of his chest, –
- In bewilderment then he almost stopped –
- 10 In what cold clockwork of the stars and the nations Was he the hand pointing that second? He was running Like a man who has jumped up in the dark and runs Listening between his footfalls for the reason Of his still running, and his foot hung like
- 15 Statuary in mid-stride. Then the shot-slashed furrows
- Threw up a yellow hare that rolled like a flame
And crawled in a threshing circle, its mouth wide Open silent, its eyes standing out.
He plunged past with his bayonet toward the green hedge,
- 20 King, honour, human dignity, etcetera Dropped like luxuries in a yelling alarm
To get out of that blue crackling air
His terror's touchy dynamite.

Remains

- 1 On another occasion, we get sent out to tackle looters raiding a bank.
And one of them legs it up the road, probably armed, possibly not.
- 5 Well myself and somebody else and somebody else are all of the same mind, so all three of us open fire.
Three of a kind all letting fly, and I swear
- I see every round as it rips through his life –
- 10 I see broad daylight on the other side.
So we've hit this looter a dozen times and he's there on the ground, sort of inside out,
- pain itself, the image of agony.
One of my mates goes by
- 15 and tosses his guts back into his body.
Then he's carted off in the back of a lorry.
- End of story, except not really.
His blood-shadow stays on the street, and out on patrol
I walk right over it week after week.
- 20 Then I'm home on leave. But I blink and he bursts again through the doors of the bank.

Sleep, and he's probably armed, possibly not.
Dream, and he's torn apart by a dozen rounds.
And the drink and the drugs won't flush him out –

25 he's here in my head when I close my eyes, dug in behind enemy lines, not left for dead in some distant, sun-stunned, sand-smothered land or six-feet-under in desert sand, but near to the knuckle, here and now, 30 his bloody life in my bloody hands.

Poppies

- 1 Three days before Armistice Sunday and poppies had already been placed on individual war graves. Before you left,
I pinned one onto your lapel, crimped petals, 5 spasms of paper red, disrupting a blockade of yellow bias binding around your blazer.

- Sellotape bandaged around my hand, I rounded up as many white cat hairs as I could, smoothed down your shirt's 10 upturned collar, steeled the softening of my face. I wanted to graze my nose across the tip of your nose, play at being Eskimos like we did when you were little. I resisted the impulse 15 to run my fingers through the gelled blackthorns of your hair. All my words flattened, rolled, turned into felt,

- slowly melting. I was brave, as I walked with you, to the front door, threw 20 it open, the world overflowing like a treasure chest. A split second and you were away, intoxicated.
After you'd gone I went into your bedroom, released a song bird from its cage.
25 Later a single dove flew from the pear tree, and this is where it has led me, skirting the church yard walls, my stomach busy making tucks, darts, pleats, hat-less, without a winter coat or reinforcements of scarf, gloves.

30 On reaching the top of the hill I traced the inscriptions on the war memorial, leaned against it like a wishbone.
The dove pulled freely against the sky, an ornamental stitch. I listened, hoping to hear 35 your playground voice catching on the wind.

War Photographer

- 1 In his darkroom he is finally alone with spools of suffering set out in ordered rows.
The only light is red and softly glows, as though this were a church and he 5 a priest preparing to intone a Mass.
Belfast. Beirut. Phnom Penh. All flesh is grass.

- He has a job to do. Solutions slop in trays beneath his hands, which did not tremble then though seem to now. Rural England. Home again 10 to ordinary pain which simple weather can dispel, to fields which don't explode beneath the feet of running children in a nightmare heat.

- Something is happening. A stranger's features faintly start to twist before his eyes, 15 a half-formed ghost. He remembers the cries of this man's wife, how he sought approval without words to do what someone must and how the blood stained into foreign dust.

- A hundred agonies in black-and-white 20 from which his editor will pick out five or six for Sunday's supplement. The reader's eyeballs prick with tears between the bath and pre-lunch beers.
From the aeroplane he stares impassively at where he earns his living and they do not care.

Tissue

1 Paper that lets the light shine through, this is what could alter things.
Paper thinned by age or touching,

5 the kind you find in well-used books, the back of the Koran, where a hand has written in the names and histories, who was born to whom,

the height and weight, who 10 died where and how, on which sepia date, pages smoothed and stroked and turned transparent with attention.

If buildings were paper, I might feel their drift, see how easily 15 they fall away on a sigh, a shift in the direction of the wind.

Maps too. The sun shines through their borderlines, the marks that rivers make, roads, 20 railtracks, mountainfolds,

Fine slips from grocery shops that say how much was sold and what was paid by credit card might fly our lives like paper kites.

25 An architect could use all this, place layer over layer, luminous script over numbers over line, and never wish to build again with brick or block, but let the daylight break 30 through capitals and monoliths, through the shapes that pride can make, find a way to trace a grand design with living tissue, raise a structure never meant to last, 35 of paper smoothed and stroked and thinned to be transparent, turned into your skin.

The Emigrée

- 1 There once was a country... I left it as a child but my memory of it is sunlight-clear for it seems I never saw it in that November which, I am told, comes to the mildest city.
- 5 The worst news I receive of it cannot break my original view, the bright, filled paperweight.
It may be at war, it may be sick with tyrants, but I am branded by an impression of sunlight.

- The white streets of that city, the graceful slopes 10 glow even clearer as time rolls its tanks and the frontiers rise between us, close like waves.
That child's vocabulary I carried here like a hollow doll, opens and spills a grammar.
Soon I shall have every coloured molecule of it.
- 15 It may by now be a lie, banned by the state but I can't get it off my tongue. It tastes of sunlight.

- I have no passport, there's no way back at all but my city comes to me in its own white plane.
It lies down in front of me, docile as paper;
20 I comb its hair and love its shining eyes.
My city takes me dancing through the city of walls. They accuse me of absence, they circle me.
They accuse me of being dark in their free city.
My city hides behind me. They mutter death, 30 and my shadow falls as evidence of sunlight.

Kamikaze

- 1 Her father embarked at sunrise with a flask of water, a samurai sword in the cockpit, a shaven head full of powerful incantations 5 and enough fuel for a one-way journey into history

but half way there, she thought, recounting it later to her children, he must have looked far down

- 10 at the little fishing boats strung out like bunting on a green-blue translucent sea and beneath them, arcing in swathes like a huge flag waved first one way

- 15 then the other in a figure of eight,
the dark shoals of fishes flashing silver as their bellies swivelled towards the sun and remembered how he and

- 20 his brothers waiting on the shore built cairns of pearl-grey pebbles to see whose withstood longest the turbulent inrush of breakers bringing their father's boat safe

- 25 - yes, grandfather's boat – safe to the shore, salt-sodden, awash with cloud-marked mackerel, black crabs, feathery prawns, the loose silver of whitebait and once 30 a tuna, the dark prince, muscular, dangerous.

- And though he came back my mother never spoke again in his presence, nor did she meet his eyes and the neighbours too, they treated him* 35 as though he no longer existed, only we children still chattered and laughed

- till gradually we too learned to be silent, to live as though he had never returned, that this* 40 was no longer the father we loved.
And sometimes, she said, he must have wondered which had been the better way to die.
