

Parts of a shoe

Although shoes and boots come in all sorts of designs, they are all made up of the same basic parts. The drawing above shows the main parts of a shoe – the upper, heel and sole.

There are a number of different heel shapes you can choose when designing shoes and boots. Think about the overall shape of your design and how the different parts balance each other. For example, if you want to use a chunky wedge heel, this would work better with a chunky rounded or square toe. A thin, pointed toe would be best paired with a thin, delicate heel.

How to draw like a Fashion designer

The shoulders, waist, hips and knees are joints that connect different parts of the body. They make helpful markers for a fashion designer. It's important to learn how to position these joints the correct distance apart, to make your croquis look in proportion.
