Film review – Steve Jobs, Billion Dollar Hippie.

The film is about how the company 'Apple' became one of the worlds largest companies in the world today and also the film shows Steve Jobs and Steve Wozniak's early life before they thought of the idea of starting a new business 'Apple'

What I liked a lot about this film is how it showcases Steve jobs life and other important roles within the starting of the company Apple and the way they progressed into becoming one of the worlds largest companies from small things like design, new ideas and much more. What I also liked about the film is that it shows how much time and effort was put into Steve Jobs ideas. I think A level business students should watch this film because there are many links to competitors, marketing skills, advertising and business entrepreneurship's.

I do not personally find any dislikes about the film 'Steve Jobs' and for that I give it a 10/10 rating. Definitely a must watch film.

Documentary review – 9 to 5

This Tv program is very focused on the popular TV presenter 'Stacey Dooley' as she takes 5 teenagers to different workplaces. The purpose of this is to show the 5 teenagers who are e struggling with the idea whether to stay on in school or go straight into apprenticeships and stacey is trying to mix them into the working world to try and help the 5 teenagers make their decision.

I like this TV program because the teenagers who are on the show usually are around my age and it can help me get a better idea of either working after school or staying in school.

I think as a A level business student this program can be suitable to watch as it gives you an idea of what to expect going into different types of business'.

I would give this show a 8/10.
